What is a special educational need?

Definitions of special educational needs (SEN) taken from Section 20 of the Children and Families Act 2014.

A child or young person has SEN if they have a learning difficulty or disability which calls for special educational provision to be made for them. A child of compulsory school age or a young person has a learning difficulty or disability if they:

- . a) have a significantly greater difficulty in learning than the majority of others of the same age; or
- . b) have a disability which prevents or hinders them from making use of educational facilities of a kind generally provided for others of the same age in mainstream schools.

How will I know if my child has a special education need?

As a school we monitor the progress of all students and identify when a young person is not keeping up with the rest of their cohort in any area.

What will the school do if my child has a special educational need?

Subject teachers / form tutors will speak with parents to gain a better understanding of the young person's needs as well as seek the advice from the school SENCo.

Information is exchanged with parents formally on a termly basis, but more regular meetings and updates may be necessary at particular times.

A Learning Passport with Individual Learning Plan targets will be written by the Deputy SENCo in conjunction with the parent and student to ensure that specific targets are shared with all who work with the young person.

The young person's learning in the classroom will be reviewed and additional resources provided if necessary. Appropriate interventions will be put in place and regularly reviewed.

Outside agencies will be contacted for advice as necessary.

As a parent how can I support my child with SEN?

You play a crucial role in your child's life. You know your child better than anyone else and you are your child's key educator. Think how much you have enabled your child to learn from birth and through school and you can see how true this is. There is a wealth of information which shows that young people do better when:

- There is a close working partnership between home and school
- Information about children's learning is shared between everyone involved in a child's development
- Parents show a keen interest in their child's education and make learning a part of everyday life.

We are an open and inclusive school and invite parents to help and support us in all matters concerning your child's learning, which will include attending reviews, and other meetings. Please do not hesitate to contact school if you have any concerns or questions around your child's special educational needs.

What key phrases might I expect to come across?

SEN Support - this is when the young person has been identified as having a special educational need and is on the school's SEN Record of Need.

Record of Need - This is a register that the school keeps that lists all the young people who have an identified SEN.

Four Areas of Need - These are the areas that categorise a young person's needs.

- Communication and Interaction - this includes young people with speech and language delay, impairments or disorders, hearing impairment, and those who demonstrate features within the autistic spectrum.
- Cognition and Learning - this includes young people who demonstrate features of moderate, severe or profound learning difficulties or specific learning difficulties such as dyslexia, dyscalculia, dysgraphia or dyspraxia.
- Social, Emotional and Mental Health - this includes young people who may be withdrawn or isolated, disruptive or disturbing, hyperactive or lack concentration.
- Sensory and/or Physical Needs - this includes young people with sensory, multi-sensory and physical difficulties.

Graduated Response - When a student is on the Record of Need, regular parent and young person reviews will follow the assess, plan, do and review progress.

Education, Health and Care Plan (EHCP) - A statutory assessment that will look at what extra support children and young people with SEN might need in their life. If a child has an EHCP it will say what support that child or young person must get.

Local Offer - This is the provision that the local authority can offer to children and young people with SEN. Each school has their own offer that can be found on their website.
